28 OCT
MON 11

PRE-FORUM SITE TOURS | 09:00 - 16:00

SITE TOUR A: COUNTRY ROAD GROUP AUTOMATED WAREHOUSE

Fulfillment warehouses have long turned to automation to combat continuous increases in operating costs, particularly in the e-commerce world where margins are already razor-thin. The use of various smart technologies, including AI and robotics, has yielded vast improvements in efficiency and savings across the logistics sector in recent years - in some cases, more than doubling picking speed and slashing fulfillment costs by up to $22 million. Take a look at how one warehouse has transformed its fulfillment operations using high-speed conveyors, error-free picking automation, environmentally friendly package reuse and more, in this exclusive tour of Country Road Group's $53 million omnichannel Melbourne distribution center.

SITE TOUR B: LA TROBE UNIVERSITY, CENTRE FOR TECHNOLOGY INFUSION

Logistics and supply chain is big business. Down Under every 1% increase in efficiency in this area can drive up Australia's GDP by $2 billion. Various technologies have brought these outcomes well within reach - including the humble RFID tag, now reinvented. Recent work in this field has created smart RFID technology that can track perishable consumer goods from paddock to plate, measuring, and reporting all you need to know about a product's condition. Through edge-computing, ultra-low battery consumption and advanced microchip development, powerful tracking features are now becoming affordable for mass adoption. Witness this in action on an exclusive tour of La Trobe University's Centre for Technology Infusion, where you will see examples of the latest advancements in smart asset tagging and logistics tracking, and how these unlock full visibility on produce in transit for a very broad range of farmers, producers, and other companies.

Transforming Complex Supply Chains Into Fully Connected And Collaborative Network With IoTs

- Many organizations are beginning to experiment with IoT devices to transform complex supply chains into fully connected and homogenous networks. IoTs can enable near real-time asset tracking, monitoring, and alerts that help streamline tasks and minimize disruption. IoT gives supply chain leaders the ability to access near real-time details on job statuses across the entire chain and helps break down silos. Realizing The Benefits Of Supply Chain Control Towers with IoTs: How Control Towers Can Enhance Supply Chain's Agility, Visibility And Collaboration

- Many companies are still struggling to achieve end-to-end visibility in their supply chains. Supply Chain control towers can now enable cross-organizational collaboration, across multiple tiers of customers, suppliers, and logistics service providers. This enables supply chain managers to not just address issues directly under their control, but to work with business partners to solve a much broader range of problems that occur in all parts of the supply chain. Real-time networks eliminate information delays; provide end-to-end visibility, and better optimization thanks to fresh, big-picture data that reflects the reality of the supply chain now. They also provide the full context for better decision making, including providing actual data on orders, inventory, shipments and capacity constraints across all nodes of the network.
